THE HURTING: Cutting for Relief

In this program, Ashley resorts to 'cutting' to cope with an abusive father, who's regularly victimized her family as far back as she can remember. Like a growing number of teens nationwide, Ashley regularly cuts her arms and legs, substituting her overwhelming inner pain and rage with an external pain that she is seemingly better able to manage. This last illusion is finally dispelled in a heart-wrenching ending that finds a desperate Ashley reaching out to a sympathetic teacher for help.

CHILD ABUSE: How to See It... How to Stop

*WINNER!

PLATINUM Award, Worldfest Houston

Even highly trained professionals have sometimes failed to recognize indicators of child abuse when exposed to them. Symptoms and behaviors are often far from obvious. Child abuse occurs everywhere - in every neighborhood and in every community. This hard-hitting and informative video examines the four different types of child abuse, which include physical abuse, sexual abuse, emotional abuse, and child neglect. Educators, parents, counselors, health and juvenile justice professionals, anyone who works with or cares about children, will learn how to identify the problem, and ways to stop it before more harm is done. Ideal for educational and professional development programs.

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE AND CHILDHOOD TRAUMA

The connection between trauma in childhood and domestic violence later in life is obvious to Jane Middleton-Moz, a relationship and trauma expert featured in this program. She states that "Children who experience domestic violence grow up learning to stuff feelings and emotions. They go through the world in a deep freeze, and have whole parts of themselves cut off. In domestic violence, if a partner wasn't allowed their vulnerability as a child, then as an adult, if that vulnerability is touched, they will act out their anger for them." This program also features interviews with Brenda, Tammy, and Jamie, all recovering from the trauma of domestic violence.

THE FALLEN FEATHER

The Fallen Feather provides an in-depth critical analysis of the driving forces behind the creation of Canadian Indian Residential Schools. Using historical source documents, survivors personal testimonies and detailed analysis from community leaders, the film explores in detail, the Federal Governments primary motivation in the creation of these Schools. While examining the influences of Indian wars, Sir John A MacDonald's National Policy, Land Claims issues, the film details how all of these events and visions contributed to the development of these Schools. The film argues that the lasting effects that First Nations in Canada suffer today, can be traced back directly to their experiences within these schools. Finally, we as Canadians are all challenge to re-examine our shared history.

TULIP DOESN'T FEEL SAFE

When children feel threatened and unsafe in the face of domestic unrest or violence, what are they supposed to do? This animated video is designed to prepare children for just that situation. Letting groups of kids watch and then having a discussion of things that make them feel scared and the things they could do if 'this' happened at their house. Going through this exercise gives them an image of a plan. Where would they go, what would they take with them, who would they call? This is designed for family strife but is a useful exercise for all children to be prepared for any perceived danger.

RECOGNIZING CHILD ABUSE

"Highly Recommended!" Teacher Librarian and Video Librarian

Unfortunately, kids who grow up facing brutality and neglect are lucky if a teacher or daycare provider catches on. Tragically, child abuse often goes unnoticed - and if a first-responder does detect it, he or she may not understand what measures must be taken. This program spells out the Four Rs of child abuse - the harsh Reality of its presence in our society, the Results it leads to, the many ways to Recognize it, and the proper channels for Reporting it. Each of these concepts is explained through eye-opening dramatizations and supported by interviews with education and child welfare experts. By following the program's clearly illustrated steps to awareness and action, viewers will become better equipped to recognize and intervene in cases of neglect and abuse - while there's still time to help.

THE CHILD ABUSE AND NEGLECT SERIES

This award-winning series provides professionals with the tools to identify and intervene on behalf of children and families in crisis to ensure that appropriate referrals and interventions can be quickly initiated. The three programs utilize case studies in which the environment of the child is explored, the characteristics of the perpetrators and victims are discussed, the signs and symptoms of abuse and/or neglect are delineated, and resources for professionals are provided.

THE VULNERABLE YOUNG CHILD

Discusses factors in the child, the family, the environment, and in the culture itself that cause young children to be vulnerable to inadequate parenting, abuse and neglect. Discusses resiliency in children. Details measures that professionals can take to assist children who are at risk.

NEGLECT AND SEXUAL ABUSE

Defines neglect and discusses characteristics of negligent parents or guardians. Discusses effects of neglect on children of different ages, and describes the nonorganic failure-to-thrive syndrome. Delineates activities that are deemed sexually abusive, the characteristics of perpetrators and victims, the phases of sexual abuse, and the physical and behavioral signs. Concludes by discussing the many-faceted and catastrophic effects of sexual abuse on children.

PSYCHOLOGICAL AND PHYSICAL ABUSE

Defines psychological abuse and discusses its effects on children. Discusses characteristics of adults who physically abuse children and illustrates common physical signs of adult-inflicted injuries. Discusses effects of physical abuse on children's emotional and social development. Concludes by identifying women during pregnancy and in the postpartum period who may be at risk for maltreating their children.

GENERATION NOW

Demonstrates how parental emotional neglect, not unlike physical abuse, can have life-long repercussions when experienced by children of any age, socioeconomic, or cultural/ethnic backgrounds. But what constitutes emotional child abuse? Viewers learn that this neglect can take many forms: parent absenteeism; demonstrations of apathy or hostility towards the individual child, the family or even the community in general; no verbal or physical demonstrations of affection like hugs, kisses, compliments and encouragement; constant badgering and criticism. When children do not feel loved, they develop low self-esteem which leads to future unhealthy coping mechanisms such as self-harm, substance abuse, or delinquency.

CONSUMING KIDS: The Commercialization of Childhood

With virtually no government or public outcry, the multi-billion dollar youth marketing industry has been able to use the latest advances in psychology, anthropology, and neuroscience to transform North American children into one of the most powerful and profitable consumer demographics in the world. Kids now influence an estimated $700 billion in annual spending, targeted virtually from birth with a relentless bombardment of sophisticated commercial appeals designed to sell everything from Hollywood merchandise and junk foods to iPods, cell phones, the family car and vacations. The result is that childhood itself has been commercialized. Drawing on the insights of experts, industry insiders, and children themselves, this program traces the evolution and impact of this disturbing and unprecedented phenomenon, exposing the youth marketing industry's controversial tactics and exploring the effect of hyper-consumerism on the actual lived experience of children.

CHILDREN WITH DISRUPTED ATTACHMENT

A secure attachment system forms the foundation for a child's development. The often devastating impact of attachment disorder on children's sense of self, and on their capacity to form attachments with new caregivers, can pose major challenges for foster and adoptive parents, as well as for therapists and group home staff. In this four-video series, the presenters describe the impact of attachment disorder on the ways that children see themselves and interact with others, and how adults can respond most effectively. They explore such topics as setting limits, avoiding power struggles, providing structure, and building a trusting relationship. Their observations are reinforced by the accounts of foster and adoptive parents, group home staff, and former foster children. The presenters emphasize the importance of understanding what drives children's behaviors, rather than simply reacting to them, and provide concrete suggestions for containing negative behaviors and improving adult-child interactions. The four programs are:

1. UNDERSTANDING CHILDREN WITH DISRUPTED ATTACHMENT

This introductory video explains the internal effects of attachment disorder, and the behaviors that children lacking a "secure base" may display. Intended for parents, residential care workers, and therapists. 42 minutes

2. PARENTING CHILDREN WITH DISRUPTED ATTACHMENT

This video examines issues encountered by parents, including foster parents, adoptive parents, or family members who are caring for a child with attachment disorder. 45 minutes

3. CARING FOR CHILDREN WITH DISRUPTED ATTACHMENT

This video discusses issues affecting residential staff, including child care workers, camp counselors, and group home supervisors. 44 minutes

4. TREATING CHILDREN WITH DISRUPTED ATTACHMENT

RECOGNIZING CHILD ABUSE

Child abuse and neglect are all too common in society. Everyone working in health care and human service has a responsibility to be aware of this continuing problem. This three part series is designed to inform those providing care and service to others on how to recognize the signs of child abuse and what actions they need to take if abuse is suspected.

PHYSICAL ABUSE

Covers various aspects surrounding the physical abuse of children including risk factors and how to recognize actual physical signs of abuse. Physical symptoms covered in detailed imagery are soft-tissue injuries, skeletal injuries, head injuries, abdominal injuries and inflicted traumatic brain injury. Also explores suggestive behaviors to be aware of in both victims and perpetrators during assessments. Finally, this program addresses the important obligation and logistics of reporting child abuse when working in health and social services. 13 minutes

NEGLECT AND EMOTIONAL ABUSE

This program provides an overview of this subject and discusses specifically the topics of neglectful caretakers, physical neglect, emotional neglect and emotional abuse. Covered in detail are the physical signs of neglect that caregivers should know. Also explored in this video are suggestive behaviors in victims of neglect and emotional abuse along with various behaviors to look for in a suspicious caretaker. Finally, this program addresses the important obligation and logistics of reporting neglect and emotional abuse when working in health and social services. 13 minutes

SEXUAL ABUSE

This program includes an overview and definition of sexual abuse, and the many ways that sexual abuse occurs, including incest, molestation, exhibitionism, child pornography and child prostitution. Discussed in detail are the specific methods that abusers utilize with their victims, including grooming and ways of pressuring of children into sexual activity. Also described are actual physical signs of sexual abuse, and with ways of identifying suggestive behaviors in both victims and suspicious caretakers. Finally, this program addresses the important obligation and logistics of reporting sexual abuse when working in health and social services. 14 minutes

THE TRAUMATIZED CHILD

The impact of abuse and neglect on children - on their behaviors, on their sense of self, and on their capacity to form attachments with new caregivers - can pose challenges for foster and adoptive parents, as well as for teachers and other professionals. In this series, therapists describe how traumatized children understand the world and interact with others differently from other children, and how adults can respond most effectively. They explore such topics as anger and anxiety, trauma triggers, dissociation, de-escalation strategies, grounding techniques, and the process of building a trusting relationship. Their observations are reinforced by the accounts of parents, teachers, and former foster children. The presenters emphasize the importance of understanding what drives traumatized children's behaviors, rather than simply reacting to them. They provide concrete suggestions for stabilizing traumatized children and improving adult/child interactions. There are three programs in the series:

UNDERSTANDING THE TRAUMATIZED CHILD

Former foster children, parents, teachers, and therapists discuss the variety of ways in which children may be traumatized, and describe the impact of trauma on the way children view themselves and others.

PARENTING THE TRAUMATIZED CHILD

Therapists and foster and adoptive parents, along with former foster children, examine the particular challenges in caring for severely traumatized children.

TEACHING THE TRAUMATIZED CHILD

This program combines guidance from therapists with the real-world insights of classroom teachers and former foster children.

THE IMPACT OF VIOLENCE ON CHILDREN

Kids today live in a volatile world where violence in the school, home, and streets is, unfortunately, an increasingly common occurrence. Statistics are staggering as children are not only abused by adults, but are killing each other. This program looks at the sources of violence that affect children. Among the experts featured in the program are Dr. James Garbarino, Director of Cornell University's Family Life Development Center; James Stayer, President of Children Now; and Kathleen Kostelny, Ph.D., of the Erikson Institute.

TRAUMA AND DISSOCIATION IN CHILDREN: A Series for Child Protection Professionals

Abuse and neglect can have profound effects on children's neurological development, and on their behaviors. The often devastating impacts of trauma on children's sense of self, on their ability to regulate their emotions, and on their capacity to talk about what has happened to them-can pose major challenges for child protective services workers, law enforcement investigators, forensic interviewers, and prosecutors. In this series, leaders in the field of trauma and dissociation come together with experts on interviewing children and prosecuting abuse cases to give child protection professionals a grounding in the psychological impacts of abuse, and provide them with better tools for working with traumatized children. Includes recent research on children's recantation and inconsistent accounts.

The first program, BEHAVIORAL IMPACTS, provides the framework for the rest of the series; the other videos will be more effective if it is shown first. This introductory video explains the internal effects of trauma on children, and the behaviors that abused and neglected children may display. Topics include how the brain reacts to trauma, how children may be triggered, the different ways in which dissociation can present, and the importance of assessing for parental trauma histories.

While interviewing an abused child is never easy, using the right approach can make the process less stressful and produce better results. In the second program, ISSUES FOR INTERVIEWERS, the presenters discuss gathering information before the interview, recognizing barriers to disclosure, using open-ended questions and prompts, and helping children stay grounded.

The third program, GUIDELINES FOR PROSECUTORS, delves into the difficult issues prosecutors may face when pursuing child abuse cases. Topics include the need for prosecutors to educate themselves about psychological issues, how dissociation can confuse a child abuse investigation, preparing a child for court, and the role of expert witnesses.

TEEN SAFETY SERIES

Teens, as well as adults, harbor misinformation regarding personal safety. Whether abuse, sexual violence or abduction, knowledge is the key to keeping teens safe with friends, dates, strangers, and others. These three programs help provide that necessary knowledge.

TEEN SAFETY: MYTHS vs. REALITY

What a teen doesn't know about abuse, sexual violence and abductions can have dire consequences. In this program, teens will learn: dangerous times and situations and how to avoid them; the case against cooperation; five ways in which boys and girls have different risks; ten abuse and abduction prevention tips; and what to do if something 'bad' happens.

TEEN SAFETY: DATING AND RELATIONSHIPS

This program uses realistic scenarios and interviews to: give information about date rape drugs and how they work; demonstrate six strategies to prevent date rape; illustrate the common warning signs of an unhealthy relationship; introduce/reinforce the concept of "inappropriate touch"; and provide teens with resources if abuse or occurring at home or school.

TEEN SAFETY: WHEN YOU ARE ALONE

Prevention is the key to stopping abuse, sexual violence or abduction. This program uses realistic scenarios and interviews with experts to: provide realistic strategies for a teen home alone; demonstrate safety strategies for a teen walking or driving alone; tips to keep yourself safe while on the Internet; demonstrate strategies for a teen in charge of young children; and personal safety statistics to which teens will pay attention.

DATING AND SEXUAL RESPONSIBILITY SERIES

This program is a well-researched, mini-curriculum, designed for high school health classes or small training groups. It can be readily adapted to any busy class schedule. The instruction incorporates role-playing and discussion to build awareness about coercive sexual behavior and how to prevent it. The series includes four units, which can be viewed together or separately:

COERCION: What Is It? - The purpose of this unit is to create more awareness among teens about coercive sexual behavior. Specifically, the instruction has these goals:

- To show that coercive sexual behavior violates individual rights.
- To recognize that coercive sexual behavior can happen in different ways.
- To understand the hurtful effects of coercive sexual behavior.
- To explore why coercive sexual behavior happens.
- To clearly define coercive sexual behavior.
- To differentiate healthy sexual development from coercive sexual behavior.

BELIEFS, ATTITUDES, AND EXPECTATIONS - The purpose of this unit is to explore and understand teens' underlying attitudes, beliefs, and expectations about coercive sexual behavior. Specifically, the instruction has these goals:

- To be able to identify different forms of sexual coercion.
- To recognize and responsibly deal with "mixed messages".
- To explore popular misconceptions (myths) teens have about coercive sexual behavior.
- To build skills around recognizing coercive behavior and beliefs.
- To examine differences in personal expectations for sex.

REFUSALS AND RESPONSES - The purpose of this unit is to build positive social skills for refusing sexual advances and responding to refusals. Specifically, the instruction has these goals:

- To explore how couples can better deal with differences in personal expectations for sex.
- To understand why refusals may be too difficult to give for females, and take for males.
- To learn about and practice caring ways to refuse and respond to sexual advances.

THE VIRTUAL DATE CD - It is virtual because the viewer takes the perspective of the person going on a date - what that person sees, thinks, and does. And yes, this activity is for everyone. There is a story version for guys and for girls. It is interactive because the viewer plays a key role in directing the events of the story. At certain points, the story stops and the viewer has to decide what he or she will do next on the date. Choices lead cooperative or coercive outcomes. It is educational because the viewer receives feedback from the actors about the particular outcome he or she created.

ABUSIVE RELATIONSHIPS: Get Help, Get Out!

"Many teens think an abusive relationship is usually a guy hitting a girl and just beating her," observes one of the many perceptive teens in this powerful program about abuse in adolescent relationships. What this young woman already knows, and viewers will soon discover, is that abuse comes in many different forms, and it can be hard to recognize at first. Teenagers of diverse backgrounds, including First Nations, speak frankly about their experiences with dating violence. What make this program particularly unique are the stories from a male victim as well as siblings and friends. The program is organized into sections which first teach teens how to identify abuse and then answer these important questions: What happens next? Why not leave? When did you realize? How do you get out? Who can help? Where do you go from here? What would you tell others? This program raises awareness about the various resources available - teachers, counselors, friends, parents - and also encourages bystanders to speak out.

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE: A Portrait of Abuse Series

*2008 FREDDIE
Award Winner

(The FREDDIE, also known as "the Oscar for health-care media", is awarded annually by the prestigious International Health and Medical Media group.

A powerful and compelling series in three parts that not only raises our social awareness of the effects and cycles of domestic violence, but digs into the psyche of both the victim and aggressor to better understand how a new outcome can be realized. Using interviews with actual battered women and abusers, the programs offer helpful and practical advice from survivors, healthcare personnel, shelter advocates, social workers, and prosecutors.

PART ONE - An overview of the incidence and prevalence of domestic violence. Also introduces the views to the women who were abused either physically, psychologically, emotionally, and/or sexually as they tell their stories. Concludes with a list of screening tips for professionals to help them identify, interview, and provide interventions for victims of domestic violence. 15 minutes

PART TWO - Begins exploring the patriarchal idea that man is the ruler in the home and women are merely his possession. Illustrates how this concept has been perpetuated in the media. Also, healthcare professionals describe the characteristics of abusive men, and one man, who identifies himself as a former perpetrator, speaks about his aggressive actions toward his wife and how intervention helped him change his behaviors and restore his relationship. 15 minutes

PART THREE - This is a dramatization of a battered woman who is brought into the emergency department for care by her abusive husband. In this vignette, identification of a victim, interviewing her in a private place, notification of authorities, and providing her with information about help available to her are explored. At the end of this segment, the women interviewed earlier talk about how they were able to move out of their abusive relationships, gain self-esteem, and move on with their lives. 27 minutes

IN AND OUT OF CONTROL: Emotional, Physical, and Sexual Violence

Provides insight into the psychological complexities of violence from the viewpoint of the witness, victim, and perpetrator. Explores how heredity, environment, and substance abuse can make a person predisposed to violence. "In some people, alcohol can disinhibit their aggressive tendencies and they become violent when they drink, but the violence was sitting in them and residing in their psyche way before they picked up that first drink." Jackson Katz, Director, MVP Strategies. Viewers are also shown the influence of alcohol and other drugs on domestic, sexual, and random violence. Identifies triggers to violence and presents methods of treatment and prevention.

IT'S NOT LIKE I HIT HER!

"Best documentary I've ever seen."

Mixing dramatic vignettes with interviews, this program examines emotional abuse directed at women by their male partners. It's not about arguing or disagreeing; it is about chronic criticism, verbal degradation, intimidation and isolation imposed on women to keep them in a socially and emotionally unsupported position. The aim, and the result, is to wear down and destroy women's self-esteem and their spirit. Both male and female viewers learn the basis for this kind of behavior in males. Tools for confronting and ending this type of abusive behavior and the treatment options available for abusers are covered. The group leader reported that every man was affected or touched, and took something away from seeing the video. It was especially good for the "pre-contemplative" man. This is the man who is still in a state of denial and has yet to recognize himself and see that there are similarities between his behaviour and the abuse represented in the scenarios.

MARTHA'S STORY: A Lifetime of Walking on Eggshells

Touching and intensely personal, this is Martha's Story of 'emancipation' from Jim, her abusive husband of 51 years, 5 months, 3 days, and 1 hour. The video chronicles the gradual progression of the abuse - the control, the isolation from family and friends, the constant threats and intimidation, the public cover up of the abuse - and finally, Martha's finding the courage to reach out for help. In her own words, in her own memories, Martha's hindsight on her 51 years of abuse is hard won and honest, and as much a catharsis for herself as a clarion call for other abuse victims to realize that there is a way out of their abusive situation. A must see for healthcare, legal, social, and protective service providers.

The problem it deals with is the re-victimization of women at the hands of the justice and social systems after these women have already been the victims of the crime of domestic violence. The video is a consciousness-raising tool about this systematic discrimination and gender bias. Helps viewers identify specific policies, procedures, and practices which may appear neutral and fair but which, in actuality, have an adverse impact on women. For many who work in the family violence field, it is difficult to accept that some women can be, and are, abusive to their partners. This program, produced by a 13 year veteran of the DV field, is ideal for treatment groups for female offenders. It is a blend of words from women who have completed a treatment program, men who were victims of DV, and three vignettes for case illustration purposes. WHAT'S AGE GOT TO DO WITH IT?

This riveting program looks at the devastating effects of abuse upon older women within intimate or spousal relationships as well as abuse by adult children.

Covers a diversity of seniors, representing many different social values, upbringings and experience. In common however, many women over fifty retain strong beliefs about privacy and self-reliance, are more likely to practice a religion, and are traditionally committed to the family, the husband and the home. Other isolating factors associated with age include health and disability issues. The primary message here is that older women can be victims of abusive behavior although it is often "silent and invisible". All forms of abuse are unacceptable and an abuser must be accountable. Age is no excuse. It's never too late for an abuser to stop and for an older woman to get out of an abusive relationship. Contains disturbing scenes. *Includes Guide.

HEALING CHILDHOOD ABUSE THROUGH PSYCHODRAMA and TRAUMA AND THE BODY: A Psychodramatic Approach

In these two extremely powerful live group sessions, master clinician and psychodramatist Tian Dayton works with group participants to confront childhood abuse, and work through trauma that they are carrying in their bodies. Dayton addresses these delicate issues with directness and great care, employing innovative action-oriented techniques that you can use in your work with clients, whether you are trained in psychodrama or not. From watching these programs, you'll be able to:

- Utilize role-play, role reversal and doubling techniques with clients who have suffered trauma.
- Create psychodrama warm-up exercises, action scenes, and group sharing discussions.
- Adapt Tian Dayton's unique approach to working with trauma and the body to your own therapy work with clients.

HEALING CHILDHOOD ABUSE THROUGH PSYCHODRAMA

Psychodrama recreates powerful relational dynamics from the past to bring about cathartic change in the present. Trauma from child abuse remains trapped inside us and continues to threaten our feelings of safety and wellbeing through adulthood. Psychodrama allows us to safely reinhabit the body at the point of past abuse and make sense of the experience from an adult perspective. In this video, Bob fears that he is passing on the legacy of abuse from his stepfather to his four-year-old granddaughter. He acts out scenes with his mother, stepfather and granddaughter, playing both himself and reversing roles. In so doing, Tian helps Bob release hidden emotions, say the things he never got to as a child, and create new meaning around his past and current relationships.

TRAUMA AND THE BODY: A Psychodramatic Approach

The body remembers the trauma that the mind does not. Psychodrama provides a space for the body to speak, for somatic memory to become conscious, and for the mind to connect and process what the body is experiencing. In this video, Travis speaks to his wounded heart and works through his fear of dying; Sheila speaks to her mother who committed suicide and releases anger that was locked up for many years; and Amal speaks to the birth mother she never met, confronting the belief that she was never loved or wanted. Dayton highlights the emotion that emerges from these participants' bodies, and helps give voice and meaning to the catharsis that emerges so that an integration between mind and body can occur.

BEYOND: Surviving the Reality of Sexual Assault

This docu-drama clarifies the details that often surround acquaintance rape, with special attention paid to its repercussions for both parties involved. The program follows the two participants from their initial meeting, through the act itself, the medical, forensic, police, and court proceedings that follow. Particular attention is paid to the 'blame the victim' defense tactic that is often used in such cases in court. Not surprisingly the same thinking can often be found in the mind of the perpetrator. Viewers are also shown the victim's process of healing as it takes place through counseling and group support. This is an excellent tool to let both male and female viewers know that sex under pressure and threat has many unforeseen results for both victim and perpetrator.

ONE VOICE: Domestic Violence

These three 30-minute programs define domestic violence and identify the helping profession's, as well as the community's, standards of care:

A SOCIAL REALITY - Skillfully blending interviews with professionals and abused individuals, the program defines domestic violence and explores the socially accepted myths about the cause of these destructive, sometimes lethal, behavior patterns. The definitions of the phenomenon focus on the problems in relationships and the socio-economic scope of relationship issues.

IDENTIFYING VICTIMS AND BATTERERS - Continuing the use of interviews, the program identifies the helping profession's standards of care on approaches, tools, and assessment strategies used to identify physical, emotional, and social injuries that occur with domestic violence.

INSTITUTIONALIZED INTERVENTIONS - Further utilizing interviews, the program defines community standards of care for individuals affected by domestic violence and presents an organized approach for mobilizing communities and helping them to intervene with couples who are in abusive relationships.

GENERATION M: Misogyny in Media and Culture

For all of the achievements of the women's movement over the past four decades, misogyny remains a persistent force in American culture. In this important new documentary, Thomas Keith, Professor of Philosophy at California State University-Long Beach, looks specifically at misogyny and sexism in mainstream American media, exploring how negative definitions of femininity and hateful attitudes toward women get constructed and perpetuated at the very heart of our popular culture. The film tracks the destructive dynamics of misogyny across a broad and disturbing range of media phenomena: from the hyper-sexualization of commercial products aimed at girls, to the explosion of gender violence in video games aimed at boys; from the near-hysterical sexist rants of hip-hop artists and talk radio shock jocks, to the continually harsh, patronizing caricature of feminism found in virtually every area of American pop culture. Along the way, Generation M forces us to confront the dangerous real-life consequences of misogyny in all of its forms, making a compelling case that when we devalue more than half the population based on gender, we harm boys and men as well as women and girls. Featuring interviews with gender violence prevention educators Byron Hurt, Jackson Katz, and Jean Kilbourne; Kimberly Salter (National Organization for Women); Nancy Gruver (Founder and CEO, New Moon Media); and others.

ANGER AND IT'S CONNECTION

Dr. Joann Peterson, M.S.W., A.C.S.W., Dip. C., Ph.D. spent more than 40 years developing anger / violence interventions for children and adults and collaborated with professionals and agencies across the United States and Canada. What Dr. Peterson found is that strategies to suppress anger often failed when people were under duress.

THE ANGER WORKSHOP SERIES

This excellent and comprehensive series is based on Dr. Peterson's three-day workshop at The Haven Institute in B.C. It stands in sharp contrast to other anger management programs because Dr. Peterson believes anger is a feeling or emotional response to hurt, fear, frustration, helplessness and loss. Since those are natural feelings, she teaches the tools to express them responsibly, separate anger from violence and build safety in all relationships. This leads to: better health, enriched relationships, enriched relationships, safer homes, workplaces and communities, and more passion and effectiveness in your life.

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE: The Cause and Cure with Victims Confronting the Abusers

EARNIE LARSEN presents this treatment program for abusive men. After years of counseling viewers on addictions and the often-troubled interpersonal relationships that seem to go with them, Earnie focuses his attention on male perpetrators of gender violence. This series features Earnie and a racially mixed trio of very eloquent female victims. Intelligent and very moving, this series is perfect for counselling and treatment sessions for male offenders. Specific concrete steps are provided that enable clients by cognitive restructuring and behavior modification to recognize and break away from patterns of male violence. The programs are:

WHERE ABUSERS COME FROM - Helps offenders begin to recognize what issues in their own personal background may have led them to habitually violent behavior toward women.

HOW ABUSERS THINK - A cognitive impairment that leads directly into a habit of violent behavior has many similarities to an addiction. Overcoming denial is a big part of the process.

HOW ABUSERS CREATE THE NEXT GENERATION - Not only did abusers inherit their habit of abuse from previous generations but they are likely to pass it on to their offspring if they don't take steps to break the cycle.

HOW TO BREAK THE PATTERNS OF CRIMINAL THINKING AND ACTING - Earnie explains what part choice must play in breaking a deeply ingrained habit such as striking out and anger. Concrete structures and models are provided to accomplish the cognitive restructuring and behavior modification needed to break the old habit and begin forming new habits of respect and control.

BEAUTY MARK: Body Image and the Race for Perfection

"A fresh, honest film about self-image and the disconnect between our minds and our bodies. Beauty Mark exposes the myriad emotional, cultural, and psychological influences that compel us to measure ourselves against an elusive standard of physical perfection -- sometimes at the price of our own health. Full of wisdom, hope and humor."

Lois Dino / Jacob Burns Film Center

How do our families influence our relationship with our own bodies? How do pop culture's standards of beauty get inside our hearts and heads? In what ways can sport and the drive for fitness actually make us sick rather than healthy? In this courageous, deeply personal new film, Diane Israel examines our culture's unhealthy fixation on thinness, beauty, and physical perfection. Israel, a Boulder-based psychotherapist and former champion triathlete, talks candidly about her own struggle with eating disorders and obsessive exercising, fearlessly confronting her own painful past as she attempts to come to terms with American culture's unhealthy fixation on self-destructive ideals of beauty and competitiveness.

The film lends context to Israel's personal odyssey with fascinating insights from athletes, body builders, fashion models, and inner-city teens, as well as prominent cultural critics and authors such as Eve Ensler, Paul Campos, and Naomi Wolf. In a special bonus feature, Israel talks in detail about her where she is in her recovery 2 years after the filming of Beauty Mark.

BEAUTY MYTH: The Culture of Beauty, Psychology, and the Self hosted by Naomi Wolf

On a sweeping historical canvas, from the Industrial Revolution to today's multi-billion-dollar diet and cosmetic industries, Naomi Wolf exposes the Beauty Myth as a distinct cultural narrative - a fiction that "beauty" exists objectively and universally. She next reveals why "beauty" must be understood within the power structures of political and economic systems - and how "beauty" is used as a kind of currency. She incisively illustrates how beauty is designed to sell products and support a hierarchical system of social relations - with devastating consequences for female well-being, and for our most intimate relationships. As women made powerful strides in economic and political spheres, the Beauty Myth took hold as a new set of fictions, and as a new sphere of control. She reveals how "beauty" came to replace domesticity as a core social virtue, with its own injunctions and prescriptions, not unlike religion itself. It really has little to do with appearances - but, instead, channels female identity into an ever-narrowing sphere of consumption, competition, and anxiety. From workplace equality and sexual harassment, to cosmetic surgery and eating disorders, to the very core of social and romantic relationships, Wolf powerfully illuminates the psychological and physiological ravages of the Beauty Myth.

LET'S TALK ABOUT IT: Domestic Violence

Xiomara Fuentes, Amandeep Kaur, and Nneka - three wives beaten and humiliated by their husbands - are the subjects of this program, which gives a voice and a face to a spreading epidemic of spousal abuse. This program puts video cameras into the hands of these women's children who then interview their mothers about why they endured - and how they survived - such physical and emotional injury. The questions they ask, framed with a poignant blend of candor and naiveté, leave no room for equivocation.
