GUYLAND: Where Boys Become Men

"A powerful exploration of what it means to be a young man today."

Michael Kaufman | Co-Founder of the White Ribbon Campaign

In this powerful new film based on his bestselling book, acclaimed sociologist Michael Kimmel maps the troubling social world where boys become men - a new stage of development he calls "Guyland." Arguing that the traditional adult signposts and cultural signals that once helped boys navigate their way to manhood are no longer clear, Kimmel takes us inside a new social order where more and more young men try desperately to prove their masculinity to one other - often with dangerous consequences for young women and guys themselves. Guyland offers a way for all of us - parents and community members, young men and women, professors and administrators - to envision new ways to support boys and young men as they navigate cultural environments that glorify unhealthy, violent, and sexist models of manhood. GUYLAND is essential viewing for courses in gender studies, sociology, media studies, communications, counseling, and psychology. #16065/0685 35 minutes 2015 $149.95 (Colleges & Universities $279.95) *CC *SA

Brand New! GTFO: A Film about Women and Gaming (Misogyny in the Video Gaming World)

"GTFO is brutally effective - intelligent, thought--provoking, and thorough."

Jason Bailey, Flavorwire

GTFO pries open the video game world to explore a 20 billion dollar industry that is riddled with discrimination and misogyny. Although half of all gamers are women, females are disproportionately subject to harassment and abuse from other gamers, and are massively under-represented in the video game design world. Through interviews with video game developers, journalists, and academics, GTFO examines the female experience in gaming and begins a larger conversation that will shape the future of the video game world. #16068/0467 76 minutes 2015 $129.95 (Colleges & Universities $299.95) *SA

Brand New! EMPATHY GAP (THE): Masculinity and the Courage to Change

In THE BRO CODE and GENERATION M, filmmaker Thomas Keith examined how American culture bombards young men with sexist and misogynistic messages. In THE EMPATHY GAP, he looks more closely at the ways these messages short-circuit men's ability to empathize with women, respect them as equals, and take feminism seriously. Keith begins by exploring some of the key messages about manhood that boys absorb from the culture -- that they should acquire material wealth, meet conflict with aggression, harden themselves, suppress all human emotion except anger, and view women primarily as sexual objects -- then argues that these messages not only devalue women but also undercut men's innate capacity for caring and empathy. Along the way, he draws fascinating parallels between sexism and racism, spelling out how each is rooted in cultural norms that discourage empathy, and shows how men who break with these norms live happier and healthier lives.

Brand New! ILLUSIONISTS (THE): A Film about the Globalization of Beauty

THE ILLUSIONISTS examines how global advertising firms, mass media conglomerates, and the beauty, fashion, and cosmetic surgery industries are changing the way people around the world define beauty and see themselves. Taking us from Harvard University to the halls of the Louvre Museum, from a cosmetic surgeon's office in Beirut to the heart of Tokyo's Electric Town, the film explores how these industries saturate our lives with narrow, Westernized, consumer-driven images of beauty that show little to no respect for biological realities or cultural differences. The Illusionists features prominent sociologists, politicians, magazine editors, scientists, artists, and activists in North America, Europe, the Middle East, and Asia. *Features interviews include: Susie Orbach, Jean Kilbourne, Gail Dines, Susan Linn, Laura Mulvey, Harrison Pope, Nadine Moawad, Ruchi Anand, Paola Audrey Ndengue, Tetsuya Ando, and Jason Karlin. #16073/0685 $149.95 (Colleges & Universities $299.95)*CC

BRAND NEW YOU: Makeover Television and the American Dream

What does it mean to be an authentic self when that self's image is constantly manipulated by media? For makeover shows too fat, too ugly, badly dressed, bad hair, bad teeth equals bad attitude ... is it a problem that such shows, from weight loss to cosmetic surgery, reproduce conventional norms of physical attractiveness and success? Taking a wider social and cultural view, have these programs become models of self-transformation at precisely the same time jobs have become harder to find and keep; when women and men have been forced to remake themselves to compete in a rapidly changing labor marketplace?

* Intended for courses in communication, gender studies, critical race theory, history, and sociology. #15924/0685 60 minutes 2014 $149.95 (Colleges & Universities $299.95) *CC *SA

Brand New! TV FAMILY: Behind the Scenes of the First Reality Television Program

In 1960, NBC aired what is widely considered to be the first "reality television" show in American broadcast history. Hosted by Jane Wyatt of Father Knows Best fame, and billing itself as a "new kind of visual reporting," it was called Story of a Family, and it purported to document the day-to-day lives of the 10-member Robertson family of Amarillo, Texas. While the show has since faded from public memory, media scholars and television historians have long recognized its significance as a precursor to the unscripted television programming that dominates American television today.

In TV FAMILY, filmmaker Ethan Thompson draws on the recollections of several of the children featured in the show to offer a fascinating behind-the-scenes account of the making of Story of a Family. Weaving personal anecdotes from the Robertsons with commentary from TV historians and cultural critics, Thompson tells the story of how the show's producers carefully choreographed the way they wanted the family to appear to the American public -- all in the name of authenticity. The result is an eye-opening look at one of the television industry's earliest attempts to shape the "reality" of family life in commercially viable ways.

*Ideal for courses that look at media culture, commercial television, communication, documentary, and television history. #16074/0685 $149.95 (Colleges & Universities $359.95)

CONSUMERISM AND THE LIMITS TO IMAGINATION

In this illustrated presentation, media scholar Justin Lewis makes a compelling case that consumer capitalism can no longer deliver on its promise of enhancing quality of life, and argues that changing direction will require changing our media system and our cultural environment. Showing how consumer capitalism has become economically and environmentally unsustainable, Lewis explores how our cultural and information industries make it difficult to envision other forms of human progress by limiting critical thinking and keeping us locked in a cycle of consumption. He argues that change will only be possible if we take culture seriously and transform the very way we organize our media and communications systems. #15923/0685 41 minutes 2014 $129.95 *CC *SA

PORNLAND: How the Porn Industry Has Hijacked Our Sexuality

As Gail Dines points out in this video, the average age of boys first viewing internet porn is 11.5 years. When an 11.5 year old boy types the word 'porn' into google what do you think he thinks he is going to get? Breasts, naked women? Well guess again! This is sex education in the internet age?! Basically, modern American (style) pornography is ugly, hateful, completely lacking in artistic merit, the antithesis of eroticism, misogynistic, brutal, and driven by multi-billion dollar corporations who care nothing about the consequences on these 11 year olds or the society in which they live.
